

Dr. Eugene Manley, Jr.

Cancer Scientist • Health Equity Strategist • Nonprofit Founder

Turning cancer disparities into concrete action in care, communities, and STEMM.

Eugene Manley Jr., PhD is a cancer scientist, health equity strategist, and speaker with 20+ years of experience across research, nonprofits, and program leadership. He is the founder of the STEMM & Cancer Health Equity (SCHEQ) Foundation, recognized as a 2025 Best STEM Diversity and Cancer NPO. Eugene works with hospitals, cancer centers, nonprofits, and campuses to make lung cancer information clearer, care more equitable, and STEMM pathways more accessible for underrepresented students. Drawing on his own experience of medical racism and a first-gen journey from Detroit to the PhD, he blends story, data, and practical tools so audiences leave with clear next steps - not just inspiration.

Testimonials

Talking with Eugene was an incredibly valuable experience that helped me clarify my goals for the future... Thanks to his guidance, I feel more confident in the direction I want to pursue and more prepared to make decisions about my future - Ephraim Baksh, high school student

This has been the event where I have had the most fun, while being all day hearing presentations... The presenters, the group dynamic, the passion of everyone attending just made it unique. Eugene did an excellent job selecting the presenters. GOOD JOB GOOD JOB clap clap. - Gloria Arroyo, patient, on 2024 Lung Cancer Health Equity Summit
